

50X1-HUM

Page Denied

Source: Shynijang Shanghai Kyojichap (Reference materials for Veterinary Officers) 23 and 47

CONFIDENTIAL

REFERENCE MATERIALS FOR VETERINARY OFFICERS

SECURITY INFORMATION

I. Deputy Chief Veterinary Officer, Corps

Deputy Chief Veterinary Officer assigned to the Corps shall be under general command of Rear Area Deputy Commander, and under direct command of Chief Veterinary Officer, Corps.

Duties

1. Deputy Chief Veterinary Officer, Corps, directs veterinary work of the Corps, and is responsible for proper execution of measures related to veterinary work in the Corps.
2. He formulates measures including chemical defense measures [Defense against chemical warfare] for prevention of epidemics among animals.
3. He supervises administering of medical treatments and evacuation of wounded and ailing horses to the rear.
4. He supervises procuring and destroying of animals and fodder.
5. He makes sanitary screening of incoming horses, either bought or captured.
6. He organizes veterinary intelligence work.
7. He supervises procurement and use of veterinary equipment and apparatus.
8. He directs veterinary training programs for both veterinary and non-veterinary personnel in the Corps.
9. He coordinates veterinary work of the Corps with that of the Divisions, and directs the activities of the Division veterinary officers detailed for training with the Corps.

CONFIDENTIAL

CONFIDENTIALII. Chief Veterinary Officer, Division

Chief Veterinary Officer, Division, shall be under general command of Rear Area Assistant Division Commander and under direct command of Deputy Chief Veterinary Officer, Corps.

Duties

1. Chief Veterinary Officer, Division, directs the Division's veterinary work, and is responsible for proper handling of veterinary problems in each unit of the Division.
2. He supervises administering of medical treatments and evacuation of wounded and ailing horses.
3. He makes sanitary screening of incoming horses.
4. He formulates and executes measures, including chemical defense measures, for prevention of epidemics among animals.
5. He supervises breeding, rearing, nursing, shoeing, and maintenance of health of horses assigned to his Division.
6. He supervises procuring and destroying of animals and fodder.
7. He organizes veterinary intelligence work.
8. He inspects storing of, and accuracy of accounting and statistical recording of, veterinary equipment, and approves requisitions for such equipment.
9. He directs veterinary training of both veterinary and non-veterinary personnel in his Division.

III. Division Veterinary Section

The Division Veterinary Station shall be under direct command of Chief Veterinary Officer, Division, and shall be located near the Division Exchange Post, and arranged in a horse-shoe shape (12 - 20 kilometers [sic]).

- 2 -

CONFIDENTIAL

CONFIDENTIAL

The animals requiring less than 15 days of treatment may be retained at the Division Veterinary Station; those requiring more than 15 days shall be treated at the Corps Veterinary Station. The Division Veterinary Station may use the transportation facilities of the Division Motor Transport Company.

IV. Director of the Division Veterinary Station

Director of the Division Veterinary Station shall be under direct command of Chief Veterinary Officer, Division.

Duties

1. He is responsible for the general operation of the Division Veterinary Station.
2. He provides personnel to assist veterinary treatments.
3. He ascertains causes of ailment of animals [sic].
4. He arranges for evacuation of the animals requiring more than 15 days of treatment.

V. Chief Veterinary Officer, Regiment

He shall be under general command of Regimental Commander, and under direct command of Chief Veterinary Officer, Division, for veterinary duties.

Duties

1. He directs veterinary work of the Regiment.
2. He organizes measures including chemical defense measures, for prevention of epidemics.
3. He arranges for treatments and evacuation of wounded and ailing horses.
4. He makes sanitary screening of incoming horses.

CONFIDENTIAL

CONFIDENTIAL

5. He supervises breeding, rearing, nursing, shoeing, and general handling and state of health of military horses.
6. He supervises procuring and destroying of animals and fodder.
7. He organizes and operates veterinary intelligence work.
8. He supervises proper accounting, recording, and storing of veterinary equipment and apparatus.
9. He organizes and directs joint and individual veterinary training programs for veterinary personnel in his Regiment.

VI. Regimental Veterinary Station

The Regimental Veterinary Station shall be under direct command of Chief Veterinary Officer, Regiment. The station treats the wounded and ailing animals requiring less than 7 days of treatment. Those requiring more than 7 days shall be forwarded to the Division Veterinary Station. The Regimental Veterinary Station shall be located near the regimental warehouse.

- END -

CONFIDENTIAL

- 4 -